a space opera in the internet

When I was young I had a friend who was very sick and accordingly lay in hospital.
After he suffered an accident as well, his condition continually worsened.
He occupied his time in hospital with reading, television and friends who visited him.
The longer he was there, the fewer were the friends who visited him and the more he watched television.
But his brother and family stuck to him, and they visited him as often as possible.
As his eyesight grew ever weaker, it was no longer possible for him to read himself, so I wanted to read a book to him_
" Die Gebrüder Lowenherz", When I came to the ward, after having obtained the book, the lady doctor said to me:
"Don't go into the room anymore, he is just about to die." I left the book with the ward sisters and said
please give it to his family and went out of the hospital.
As I saw the sun over the hospital, it was as if he was ascending heavenwards from the hospital and he said to me: "All is well, have no fear, it goes on, it is wonderful and easy, live your life, you must know, when a life is over.
One can never say this when it is over on earth, as it then goes on, always good, in the next phase."

That is why I became an artist. I wanted people see my thoughts after reading books or after looking at films.
I want to show the momentary thoughts, when the reader closes the book or when a member of the audience comes out of the cinema, the moment between the worlds, mine and those of the books or the films.
My work should be seen everywhere on earth as well as in space, so that everyone can relax with art, and knows, that the future cannot be governed in advance, but one can work for a good future and wish for it.
One can do this, until it becomes reality, both on earth and in space.
